Magical Schools of Europe

By: Asha Jaskar

Here are the magical schools that compete in the Triwizard Tournament in Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire, which takes place in the 1994-1995 school year. The three schools that participate are Hogwarts, Durmstrang and Beauxbatons.

Hogwarts: Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry is a magic school in Scotland. The headmaster at the time was Albus Dumbledore. Hogwarts has four houses: Gryffindor, (valuing bravery, nerve and chivalry) Hufflepuff, (valuing loyalty, dedication and hard work) Ravenclaw (valuing wisdom, cleverness and creativity) and Slytherin (valuing ambition, resourcefulness and leadership). The Triwizard champions from Hogwarts were Cedric Diggory and Harry Potter.

DURMSTRANG: Durmstrang Institute is another magical school. No one knows where Durmstrang really is, but we do know the basic location: "But I think it must be somewhere in the far north," said Hermione thoughtfully. "Somewhere very cold, because they've got fur capes as part of their uniforms." The headmaster at the time was Igor Karkaroff. And like Hogwarts, Durmstrang has four houses: Atticus, (valuing bravery, cunning and skilled in the Dark Arts) Concinne, (valuing charm, beauty and being pure blood) Liberalis (valuing cleverness, learning, and curiousness) and Terpsichora (valuing creativity, humor and fun). The Triwizard champion from Durmstrang was Viktor Krum.

Beauxbatons: Beauxbatons is a magical school somewhere in France. The headmistress at the time was Olympe Maxime. Beauxbatons has three houses: Bellefeuille, (valuing loyalty, bravery and a love of nature) Papillonlisse (valuing kindness, gentleness and responsibility) and Ombrelune (valuing perfection, cleverness and thoughtful). The Triwizard champion from Beauxbatons was Fleur Delacour.

Thank you for reading about the three major magical schools in Europe!
